Mobilising Your Workforce: Nine Key Questions

(Abstract; full editorial available at www.cmohandheldsoftware.com)

Mobilising your Workforce can have significant benefits for most enterprises, hence needs to be considered very carefully. Many believe that device selection is the highest priority, however it is contended that you need to start by understanding the requirements of your workforce and your enterprises long-term mobile goals

Here are nine key questions that should be considered before you begin the device selection process for your enterprise.

1. Who are your user groups?
2. What geographic areas do your user groups cover?
3. In what type of environments will the wireless devices be used?
4. How secure do your communications need to be?
5. What applications would you like to have in the field?
6. What type of data are you accessing and entering?
7. Do you need to access and react to data in real time?
8. What are your long-term mobile goals?
9. What are your organization's financial limitations?
